GOULD ON THE RACK

Private Life is Disclosed

HIS VALET ACTS AS ODETTE TYLER'S MAID

And Shampoos Katherine Clemmons' Hair, Which Was Peroxided

Scripps-McRae Press Ass'n.

New York, Nov. 16.—Howard Gould was put to the torture again today on the witness stand in the supreme court. His wife was also in court as a spectator and blushed with him when the questions of the lawyers became personal to both of them. She was at a tight fitting pearl-gray tailor made street dress and wore a low crowned hat trimmed with artificial pink flowers and cerise colored velvet. She also wore a set of mink furs.

Mowbray, the complainant, looked unprepossessing with his pale face and a black patch over his empty eye socket.

The plaintiff's attorney, Wales F. Severance, tried by his questions to show that Mr. Gould discharged Mowbray because Mrs. Gould, then Katherine Clemmons, didn't like him and he asked many questions which the court ruled out as improper. He asked if Mr. Gould did not order Mowbray to act as maid for Odette Tyler, and if, after the valet had shampooed Miss Clemmons, fault was not found because injury was done to the coloring of the hair.

He also asked if Mowbray had not objected to the circumstances and surroundings of Mr. Gould at certain times when he was called upon to render personal service to the defendant, but Mr. Gould answered all the questions allowed by the court quietly.

Drama Gould's Private Life.

Mowbray was the first witness to day.

"Did Mr. Gould ever tell you not to mention the names of the guests see his yacht?" Mr. Severance, the plain off'side, asked.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Did he ever tell you not to mention any conversation you heard between him and Mrs. George Blanchard?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did Mrs. Blanchard ever be seen York?"

"You are at 'p. West Philadelphian street."

Mr. Severance tried to show that Mr. Gould had also lied at the same place but the question was not allowed. Witness did say he had first met Miss Clemmons when Mrs. Howard Gould at a New York street in London in the winter of 1891.

Miss Clemmons charged me with having appropriated money given to me for her use, Mowbray continued. Two banknotes came to the house and threatened to take the money out of my hands if they were not paid. I told Gould I'd stand by him if they attempted to harm me.

STORY OF THE DISASTER.

I told Mr. Gould about these threats and having accepted my note of hand. He said he knew it but wouldn't help it and asked me to be patient and put up with her treatment.

In the winter of 1891, when we were in London, I objected to being compelled to take up breakfast in the room. I told Mr. Gould it was degrading to me.

He said: "Never mind it. Frank, you're the only one who knows about this. I can't trust any other."

Once in West Beverly-second street, in the winter of 1890, when Miss Clemmons threatened to procure my discharge, Mr. Gould said: "Take no notice of it."

I told him that Miss Clemmons had threatened that she would get me discharged because I knew too much about her affairs.

One afternoon Miss Clemmons was up shampooing Mr. Gould, she said. Oh, Howard, I wish I could get my hair shampooed too.

Mr. Gould asked me if I could shake poor Miss Clemmons high. I told him I knew nothing about better hairdressing but worse, try and I just scratch her head, Mr. Gould said to Miss Clemmons. Well, your hair is getting darker.

MISS CLEMMONS USED PEROXIDE.

You reported Miss Clemmons. It's on account of something that hurtin Frank put on her hair when he shaved poor it."

Did Miss Clemmons use peroxide?

Before Mr. Gould's attorney could object Mr. Mowbray exchanged: "She did sit."

When Mr. Gould was called to the stand he denied most of the statements made by Mowbray. He admitted that Miss Clemmons was on board his yacht when Mowbray was discharged, but declared that the discharge was not at her suggestion.

Mr. Gould was visibly annoyed and confused and flushed deeply. He was unable to tell when he became engaged to Miss Clemmons. He first said it became publicly known five or six years ago.

WHEN YOU GO TO PROVE UP

Some Useful Information for the Homesteader

Soon many homesteaders are about to make final proof on their claims that it will probably be of interest to them to know something of the questions which will be put to claimants and their witnesses, and which are these:

1. Name, age, postoffice address.

2. Are you a native born citizen of the United States, and if so, in what state or territory were you born?

3. Are you the identical person that made homestead entry No. _____ at the land office on the day of _____ 18_____, and what is the true description of the land now claimed by you?

4. When was your house built on the land and when did you establish actual residence therein? Describe house and improvements and value.

5. Do you know your family and relatives and have you and your family resided continuously on the land where you established a residence thereon all summer, state the fact.

6. For what period of months have you been absent from the homestead since making settlement and for what purpose? If temporarily absent, can your family reside upon and cultivate the land during said absence?

7. How much of the land did you cultivate each season and for how many seasons have you raised crops thereon?

8. Is your present claim within the limits of an incorporated town or a selected site of a city or town, or in any way fit for trade or business?

9. What is the character of the land, shaded mountain, prairie, grass, agricultural? State what purpose it is most suitable.

10. Are there any indications of coal, sulfur or minerals of any kind on the land? If so describe and state if the land is more valuable for agricultural than for industrial purposes.

11. Does your wife and other household earn? If so, describe and tell where kept.

12. Describe any legal liability, loss or by number, kind of value, of our house made, and other articles of value and mineral made by you since August 1, 1890.

The questions put to the witness are virtually the same as those put to the claimant himself: a sure and take your filing paper with you.

THE NATIVITY OF CHRIST.

In the early history of the Christian church in the east the festival of Christmas was celebrated in the months of April and May, but in the fourth century through the persistent urgency of St. Cyril of Jerusalem, Pope Julius issued an order for an investigation concerning the day of Christ's nativity. The commission to inquire into the subject was composed of the wisest theologians of the east and west, and the result of their investigation was an agreement upon the 25th of December as the most probable, although in the opinion of some of these wise men there was not sufficient proof of the identification of the day, yet the decision was generally accepted and from that day to the present December 25 has been celebrated as the birthday of Christ by all Christians.

There is absolutely no positive evidence upon which the wise men based their conclusion as to the exact day when Christ was born, and their chief grounds for fixing upon December 25 were the tables of the censor in the archives of Rome.

The great primary purpose of the commission of inquiry was to secure uniformity among the Christian churches and this object has been entirely successful throughout the Christian world.

The way it now is, our officers have to work two days or one day and one night. It will be easier on the men and cost no more and we would have results so much sooner, and time with people now-a-days is the great consideration. Who wants to wait a day or two to know the result of an important election?

If this plan works well in one state it will work equally well in Kansas. We ought not to be behind anybody."

COUNTING THE BALLOTS.

A Suggested Reform That Will Save Much Time.

A reform in the manner of counting the votes cast on election day, would be a good subject for the legislature to take up at present, the result is never known until the day after election. Some fifty years ago the present plan was all right but of late years the people are living faster and they want to know the result of any important election as soon as possible or within two hours, at least of the time the polls close. County should know the result of its own election within a few hours from the time the voting ends.

Here is an idea suggested by the Sterling Bulletin, that excellent paper edited by J. E. Junkin, in effect, provides where there are more than one hundred votes polled. There should have been two sets of election officers—one to take the ballots, the other to count the same as in New York. It would cost no more than our present plan.

The way it now is, our officers have to work two days or one day and one night. It will be easier on the men and cost no more and we would have results so much sooner, and time with people now-a-days is the great consideration. Who wants to wait a day or two to know the result of an important election?
